The report the James boys intend to go into the banking business in Newark, N. J. lacks confirmation.

Columbus is likely to be removed from the district attorneyship of the District of Columbia. His supposed friendship for the star raters has impaired his usefulness.

Gov. Clifton has issued a proclamation prohibiting the importation of cattle into this state from eastern states, in order to prevent the spread of the disease known among stock men as the pleuro pneumonia.

A few days ago we were told that the boom in conference bonds was caused by the election of Day and to the presidency of the senate. But the substitution of Senator Davis did not bear the number. Is it not a great wonder that conference bonds did not have a grand boom when both houses of congress were democratic?

There is talk of a scheme to erect a few mining camps in the territory of Dakota into a state. The export of Nevada and Colorado should be subjected to prevent any similar foolishness. The democrats in congress who voted for the admission of Colorado in 1876, have probably learned a lesson that will be of advantage to the country, as well as the party.

In Sweden, again it is a man of his times. He has attended to the duties of president, and cleared his table of affairs that had accumulated during the illness of President Garfield. He has also found time to throw the influence of the federal office holders in favor of Mahone and repudiation in Virginia, and to convert his party to the new faith. This accomplished, he has gone home to New York to vote, and help the boys in securing a majority. Great and good is Arthur.

The Chicago Tribune, a good republican paper, says: Judge Folger is well known to the country at large as a successful aspirant for a cabinet position under Garfield, for the position to which, then, Arthur has now appointed him.

Whether or not Conkling is to be come secretary of the treasury in due time, it is certain that Arthur intends the place shall be filled by a New Yorker. In this purpose he anticipates directly the policy of the late President Garfield, who, in repeating Morton, Judge Folger, and all the other New Yorkers whom Mr. Conkling endorsed to force upon him, took the ground that it would be unwise and improper to give the control of the government finances into the hands of a New York politician or a resident of New York, etc. President Garfield was true to the traditions and precedents of the government in this matter.

It was Conkling's concern about the New York custom house and the Wall Street interests which prompted him to demand from President Garfield the privilege of dictating the appointing of his secretary of the treasury; but it was President Garfield's sense of fitness, duty and public welfare which led him to resist that demand even to the extremity of Conkling's hating enmity and open warfare.

Important elections occur in various states to-morrow, but in no case will there be much of a contest except in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia. In New York, there will not be a full vote, and the chances are in favor of the republicans, although this state is democratic, when democrats were united as in 1876. The state administration is now republican, which with the aid of the federal administration, will largely influence the result.

In Pennsylvania, only a state treasurer is to be elected. There are three candidates in the field, republican, (Cameron), independent republican, (anti ring) and democratic. Here the contest is doubtful. Wolfe, the independent candidate, has made an active canvass and has a large following in Philadelphia and other localities. He will not be elected, but his vote will determine the result between the other candidates.

The Virginia contest is pretty well understood. The Malconites and republicans have united in favor of the republican ticket, and the whole influence of the federal administration is in its favor. The indications are that the contest will be close, though the chances are in favor of republicanism. If we were to wish the republican party any great harm it would be that it might be successful. It would make reproduction one of the planks of the party platform.

PERSONAL.

A. H. Scott, of Bellamy, slept in Decatur Saturday night. H. L. Keeler, of Clinton, was one of Decatur's Saturday guests. Miss Hattie Jones has returned from her visit to Indianapolis. J. E. Megann and wife, of Taylorville, Ill., arrived in town Saturday evening. Geo. W. Downing has returned home from his trip to Louisville, Kentucky. Wm. Townbridge and W. A. Reagan left Saturday night to join the fishing party at Kankakee. Miss Nellie Cutler, of Henry, Ill., arrived in the city Saturday, on a visit to Miss Minnie Parker. Hon. H. D. Dwyer, secretary of state, spent Sunday in the city, a guest of Hon. B. K. Durfee. Thus, Kennedy has resigned his position as clerk and telegraph operator at the round house and gone to Chicago.

Mrs. D. M. Fiedling and her guest, Mrs. Mary Parrot, went to Livingston Saturday afternoon on a week's visit to friends. Jas. V. Shinnel, the lively, wholesale Chicago drummer, planned into the city Saturday evening, to spend a pleasant Sunday. Mr. Samuel Wright and daughter, Emily, of Simpsonville, Ky., are in the city, on a visit to Mrs. J. N. Wright and family. Mr. M. J. Oliver went to Chicago Saturday night and will be absent nearly all week, on business for the Traveler Family Company. Mr. P. J. Kearney and wife returned home from their bridal trip Saturday, and "Pat" is again on duty as deputy marshal of the city.

Mr. Ulrich Zeigler, the practiced chair builder, of Jacksonville, Ill., is visiting his father in law, Mr. John Stedek, a few miles west of Decatur. G. D. Randolph, the Eldorado street grocer, has associated himself with Overmire & Kaufman in the real estate and insurance business, and a call from his old friends would be much appreciated. C. G. Peterson, assistant express agent in the American Express office here, takes a place as railway messenger on the Central trunk and track station, of Naperville, takes his place in the office.

Mrs. Ada B. Peterson and Miss Mattie Wronbridge, daughters of Dr. S. T. Wronbridge, United States consular agent at York, Pa., Meadon, are visiting old friends in Decatur and other Central Illinois towns. J. W. Wigginton, of the Walshaw freight office at Moberly, Mo., was in the city Saturday, and called to see the local editor. We regret that we were absent from the office at the time of his visit.

John Sweeney, formerly foreman in the Walshaw round house here, but now engaged in the tailoring shops at Danville, was in town Saturday evening on a visit to relatives. Frank Payne and Henry Smith returned home from Kankakee Friday night. The rest of the fishing party are still swinging the hook and line over the waters of the lake, and will probably remain away another week.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Elder, of Bay an, Ohio, arrived in the city yesterday morning, on a visit to the family of their nephew, Mr. V. Hurd. After spending a few days here, they go to St. Louis, where they stop for a visit with Harry Gray.

Mr. O. F. Spaulding, of Rockford, Ill., the genial and well-known Chicago drummer, has had aside his sample cases and come to Decatur to make his future home. He is now behind the desk at the New Denning hotel, and it is understood that he has purchased Mr. J. B. Fisher's interest in the house, and that the proprietorship of the hotel will hereafter be O. F. Spaulding & Co., with R. Denning manager, as heretofore. Mr. Spaulding has the courteous bearing of a true gentleman, and we welcome him to the business and social circles of Decatur.

Peru-where Johnson was often spoken of as an accident. Why is not the same, or a term of similar meaning applied to Arthur. When he settles down to business, and the half breeds feel his power, they will begin to in-vent endearing epithets, as did the child of power for Garfield.

NOTES.

A little episode in the police court with a Decatur prisoner. From the "Lad." It was a case of intoxication. The offender had been before his Honor, Judge McCallahan before, on the same charge. He was a Decatur gentleman, who, during his once sober years was a credit to the craft. The sweet and odorously cooler had been his night, long previous. The scull whirl, coming in from the long pond from the rear, was full of balmy delights, to cheer and soothe the aching brow. He came into the court, and enough. He plead his own case. Said he: "May I please the Court, I own the corn. I have sinned against the city and against myself. Through the hubbub of the city I steal, a wicked frame. Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn. I appeal to the Court's best interests. I appeal to his conscience as a man and a christian. Is it not a punishment worse than the Black Hole of Calcutta, worse than the prison of Chillon beneath the dungeons' moat; worse than in fact, the slow death of a consumptive bed bug, to pine away the lonely hours in the Danville cat-alouse? Is it not enough to wipe away the stain from the city's unsullied honor to absorb an over dose of Danville's law protected long juice and beat my shaming wings against the city's prison bars, through the lonely watches of the night? I have no money; but I have what is better, capacity."

"For whiskey?" "The prisoner cast a look of withering scorn upon the court and the audience, and said: "Give me a show, judge. Beena has fired me out of the 'Nave' office. Shoot, of the Lord, has stood me as long as he could. Major-General John Quincy Adams of the 'Tyranny' has conceived a bad opinion of me, and Al Harper, of the 'Cameo call,' would rather have the ten thousand come in. The police think I ought to die; and I would, judge, but the fact is I'm too big a coward to snuffle off this mortal coil, fold the shroud of my couch about me, and lie down to pleasant dreams. If you'll let me go, I'll depart. I'll vanish from the balmy embrace of the starch-worls and live out to gather plumpkins the rest of my natural life. Do you understand?"

"Tom, take this man away," said the court. "How a bad lot. We might board him here all winter at the city's expense, and he would be no better off. Give him four joints to leave, and if at the end of that time he has not gone, hawling out as a dramatic cartridge to blow up stumps."

Amos went immediately to raise a stake at some of the printing offices, to get his shirt out of Hop Kee's laundry. An hour later he was walking down Main street singing: "Somebody's coming when the new drops fall."

By the police records we learned the next day that Amos had failed to "vanish," and had been sent up for another term.

The house is neatly and conveniently arranged, the goods put up in good shape, and when everything is completed, it will be one of the nicest grocery stores in Decatur.

Rarely has so powerful a concert organization as that of the Kellogg troupe been organized. It has so far this season proved to be the most popular as it is the most artistic of the many companies that have entered the musical field. The programmes have invariably been of the choicest character, and the attendance everywhere has been of an overwhelming character. The troupe opened in New England, and met with a most enthusiastic reception in Boston; the press there agreeing that Miss Kellogg never sang better. Similar enthusiasm greeted the company in Brooklyn—Kellogg, Brignoli, Adamowski and Taghapietra all being met with the most cordial and appreciating welcome. Messrs. Pond and Bachart have every reason to feel proud of their triumphs in the musical field this season.

"Ireland and Parnell." There was a large crowd of people out last night to hear the lecture, on the above subject, delivered by Rev. Father Boylan, of Ireland. About fifty members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians honored the reverend gentlemen by putting on their full and elegant regalia and escorting him from Father Mackin's residence to the tabernacle, the place of meeting. The order took seats on the stage just back of the speaker. The Land League glee club which was in attendance, also occupied a place on the stage. This excellent band of singers, with Miss Annie Hickey at the organ, sang, at the opening of the meeting, the following patriotic airs: "The Meeting of the Waters," "I Saw from the Beach," and "Let Erin Remember the days of Old."

Rev. Father Mackin called the meeting to order, and after offering a few preliminary remarks introduced the speaker, Rev. Father Boylan, an Irish priest. Father Boylan talked for about an hour and held the attention and interest of his audience to the close. He began by thanking the people for turning out so liberally to hear him, and by expressing his appreciation for the honor the Hibernians had shown him. His lecture was delivered in true characteristic Irish style. It was illustrated by humorous anecdotes, each of which produced an abundance of laughter, and at the same time conveyed a forcible truth. He is a well-informed gentleman and has the happy faculty of expressing himself in eloquent language. In speaking of the united efforts of both Protestant and Catholic in seeking relief for oppressed Ireland, and in his closing peroration on the grandeur of the American government and the American people, he grew especially warm in his eloquence. We would gladly give a synopsis of the lecture, but our limited space forbids.

At the close of his lecture the glee club sang "When Ireland's Wrongs are Righted," and the audience was dismissed. "Garry Owen" sounded from the organ while the crowd marched out.

There were over four hundred people in attendance, and nearly $100 taken in at the door.

Wedded Last Evening.

Litchfield and Decatur were linked in a matrimonial alliance, which was consummated at the former place last evening. At 7 o'clock at the residence of Mr. J. D. O'Bannon, the bride's cousin, Mr. James D. Brown and Miss Amy O'Bannon were joined in marriage. The happy bride and groom and a few invited guests partook of the nuptial feast prepared for them, and stepped aboard the 8:40 train for Decatur, arriving here at the 10:50 last night. They stopped at St. Nicholas hotel, but to-day they will begin housekeeping in a cozy little house, already neatly furnished, at No. 54 North Edward street. Mr. Brown is a clever young man, engaged as baggage-master on the Washington, between here and St. Louis, along the line of which he has been smashing trunks for the "Sam'l of Posen" for the past seven years. He has many friends both in Decatur and along the line who will congratulate him upon the happiness he now enjoys in claiming for his own the girl who won his early love, in childhood's happy hours—in the companionship of their school days.

Mr. and Mrs. James Provost Reach the Fiftieth Anniversary of their Marriage.

On the 5th day of November, in the year 1831, Mr. James Provost and Miss Annie Baker were united in marriage in the city of Newark, New Jersey. They were then aged respectively 22 and 21 years. A half century has passed since then, and Mr. and Mrs. Provost have seen many of the mighty changes which time in its onward flight is continually producing on the things of earth. They have seen the bright flowers and heard the joyous singing of birds for fifty summers; they have witnessed the falling of the autumn leaves and listened to the moaning winds for half a hundred winters; they have seen their own children grow up to manhood and womanhood, their grand-children to follow them, and to-day prattling, playful little great-grand-children surround them: all these, together with the innumerable other changes of fifty years have they witnessed, and still they live to share each others joys and sorrows! Golden weddings are anniversaries which only a comparatively few married people have the good fortune to celebrate, and in view of this fact a number of the relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Provost arranged to recall to them the occasion when their vows were pledged, by gathering together and bestowing presents upon them. Mr. and Mrs. Provost came from the east to Decatur about fifteen years ago, and besides being surrounded by a number of relatives, have made many friends here. Quite a number of these collected at their residence, No. 59, West William street last Saturday evening and bestowed upon them a number of presents, extended hearty congratulations to the "bride and groom," and enjoyed their society and the society of each other until the clock tolled the midnight hour. Mr. and Mrs. Phineas Provost and others of the family, all of whom reside at the same place, provided a fine supper for the occasion, which was spread on four long tables, and of which all partook with a relish. The following is a list of the presents and the names of the donors:

Photograph Album, Mr. and Mrs. A. Stecher, Japanese Handkerchief box, with 1 dozen handkerchiefs, Mr. and Mrs. L. Westerman. Silk Handkerchief, Fritz and Max Westerman. Lace tie, Mrs. S. Borland. Book, "Grandma's Green." Two cups and saucers—monarch cup and ladies cup, S. N. Ingham. Two gold rings presented by the following grand-children, Chas. Shilling, Anna Zettlmyer, Lulu Brown, Willy Brown, Claude Maine, Frank Maine, Meta Provost, Mary Provost, Sadie Provost, Frank Provost, Fannie Provost, and great grand-son, Guy Provost. $5 in gold, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Scruggs. $25 in gold, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Butman. $25 in gold, Wm. H. Shorb. $5 in gold, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bishop. $5 in gold, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Provost, of Sioux City, Iowa. Purse of gold, about $75, in an old-fashioned satin money bag, hand painted, from Mr. and Mrs. E. McNabb. Mr. and Mrs. John Lytle. Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Heilman, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hospital Fair and Festival.

The entertainment which is to be given at the tabernacle on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings of this week demands more than a passing notice from the public. While the means alone may be, and doubtless will be, well worth the time and cost sought for at the hands of the people, the ends to be attained should especially enervate every philanthropic man and woman in Decatur to participate in the effort to make it a success. St. Mary's hospital is a charitable institution, the only place of the kind in the city. Decatur has not a few features of which to feel proud, and among other claims of superiority let us establish that of public benevolence. Let it never be said that we lack in charity to the unfortunate of our kind. There are many poor afflicted creatures in our land who are unfortunately destitute of both home and friends, except such as are afforded them by those whose hearts are possessed of that charity which Buckminster rightly denominates the greatest of all—charity toward the uncharitable. For the care of such unfortunates is this hospital established. The sick and the afflicted are here cared for tenderly until their health is restored. The hospital is deficient in its means and the sisters in charge of it adopt this plan to add to its facilities for the good work it is designed to perform. Let every body in Decatur patronize the hospital fair and festival.

A Ministerial Statement.

Rev. C. A. Harvey, D. D., is the popular financial secretary of How and University, and is specially fitted to judge of merit and demerit. In a recent letter from Washington to a friend he said: "I have for two years past been acquainted with the remedy known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and with its remarkable curative efficiency in obstinate and so-called incurable cases of Bright's disease in this city. In some of these cases, which seemed to be in the last stages, and which had been given up by practitioners of both schools, the speedy change wrought by this remedy seemed but little less than miraculous. I am convinced that for Bright's Disease in all its stages, including the first symptoms, which seem so slight but are so dangerous, no remedy heretofore discovered can be held for one moment in comparison with this." THE CLARA LOUISE
CONCERT COMPANY!
THE GREATEST MUSICAL EVENT IN THE HISTORY OF DECATUR.
The very best available talent has been secured to accompany Miss Kellogg, and the troupe, as now organized, will consist of
MISS CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG, justly acknowledged on two continents to be the greatest living concert-room artist,
MISS CLARA POOLE, the charming contralto, whose talents and accomplishments have made her a favorite throughout the New England states, especially in Boston.
SIG. BRIGNOLI, the famous tenor, whose exquisite Italian method and pure voice have made him the favorite of operatic critics, and whose popularity extends over the whole country.
SIGNOR TAGHAPIETRA, the eminently distinguished young artist, whose matchless voice and thoroughly artistic method has already won for him a position second to no baritone living.
HERE S. LIEBLING, pianist, whose brilliant execution and masterly interpretation have secured for him the highest commendations everywhere.
TIMOTHIE ADAMOWSKI, a young polish violinist of extraordinary genius. He is a pupil of Kouski, the celebrated virtuoso of the Warsaw Conservatoire.
MR. ADOLPH GLOSE, Accompanist.
